Senator Umberto Terracini's visit to Berlin in the 1950 allegedly served merely as a screen for his ultimate destination, Moscow a

- Terracini's trip was reportedly made in order to justify his position in the internal dissention within the Italian Communist Party. He has been accused of being a "bourgeois deviationist" and has been reprimanded for the manner in which he conducts his private life. Following his marriage to an actress, Terracini has not been frequenting Communist circles as usual.
- This charge against Terracini, though not new, has recently been emphasized, Terracini enjoys Palmiro Togliatti's favor but is disliked by Pietro Secchia.
